What is a "document approver"?

Document Approvers are users who have been assigned the responsibility of approving documents. Documents approvers can be assigned to individual documents when a document is imported, created, edited or revised. Default document approvers can be assigned to entire frameworks under Framework Settings in Application Options. Default document approvers can also be set for all of the documents in the system under Global Settings in Application Options. By default the NovaCore Administrator is set as the document approver. When the document approver for a specific document is unassigned, the default framework approver will be used; if that is unassigned, the default global approver will be used; if that is unassigned the RTOADM (NovaCore Administrator) user will be used.
